

Watercolor with Evelyn Dunphy at Anam Cara Writers & Artists Retreat on the Beara, the
"Undiscovered Peninsula of Ireland"

May 18 - 25th, 2019
Workshop limited to 8 - 10 artists

Save $200.00 with early registration by January 30, 2019

The goal of Evelyn's workshops is to share her painting knowledge and experience with each student in the way that will best help them to further their own personal development. The small group size means lots of personal attention. You will have as much of Evelyn's time as you wish and require! There are demonstrations at the beginning of each day and one on one demonstrations go on throughout the day.

Our plan is to paint out of doors each day; in the village, at the sea, on the grounds of Anam Cara (there is a beautiful waterfall right there). We also have a field trip to the Stone Circle. There's a photo of it on the brochure. It truly is memorable.

If it happens to rain (it is Ireland!), we have a large conservatory with great lighting for our use. It is also available at all times during the workshop for artists' use.

We end each day with a get-together in the conservatory with an in- depth critique and conversation. Critiques are always "additive" and instructive with the intention of looking at what was done during the day, what worked, and what we may do differently next day.

Please read student's recommendations on the Workshop page of her website: www.evelyndunphy.com.

My dream is that your time with me at Anam Cara be a true experience of time spent in a small Irish village - more than just a "workshop". As part of this dream, you will enjoy a driving tour of the Beara. One would think that after you have done this once, you would not feel the need to go again. I can assure you that although next year will be my 11th tour, I look forward to it even more every year. Even a week's difference in time means a very different landscape. You have to go over Healey Pass in order to believe it. Not to mention the other places that we see, and stop to explore.

Note that the $200.00 savings for early registration also applies to non-painting companions.
